

HCG WEIGHT LOSS PROGRAM

WHITELEY WELLNESS CENTER

Patient Information and Disclosure:

The use of HCG to treat obesity is not an approved use of the drug, but an "off-label" use of HCG, which has an approved use of treating infertility. The drug is prescribed for the unapproved use at the discretion of the prescribing physician. The FDA has not approved the use of HCG for weight loss treatment, obesity therapy or determined that the use of HCG contributes to an individual's loss of body fat. The FDA, National Institute of Health and the manufacturers of HCG advise that "HCG has no known affect on fat mobilization, reducing appetite or sense of hunger, or body fat distribution." and they further state that "HCG has not been demonstrated to be an effective adjunct therapy in the treatment of obesity and does not increase fat losses beyond that resulting from caloric restriction." Using HCG for weight loss is considered "off label" according to the FDA.

Knowing this I agree to hold harmless the physicians, owners and staff of Whiteley Wellness Center, and any of its affiliates, both now and in the future.
